After the first round of acceptance/declining of the offer of a destination, there will be a second allocation of students ("scorrimento reserve") based on their total score in descending order of merit and in accordance with the positions left vacant on a given destination.

Phase 3: Final allocation (riassegnazione)
Students who have not been allocated during phase 1 or 2 may be allocated to any free destination left.
In the first round of selection («prima graduatoria»), students are allocated to a destination based on their total score in descending order of merit, taking into account, if possible, their preferences.
If a student is not allocated because of lack of positions left vacant on their preferred destinations, they may be allocated during the second allocation round to another available destination.

The second round of allocations (riassegnazione) may take place either by public open call or by direct allocation according to one of the following criteria (see Allegato I/Annex 1):

1. Second allocation is done on a single “graduatoria” (results list): students are allocated on the basis of their total final score in one single “graduatoria”

2. Second allocation based on language area: different “graduatoria” (results lists) based on the language area of students’ preferred destinations.
